How We Drove Success at Prince Rupert

A path forward for ports in Mexico and elsewhere

Since the port opened to intermodal traffic in 2007, we have generated dramatic growth with a unique successful formula:

1. Management Best Practices

- > We operate as one team with the Port Authority, terminal operator, transloaders, and unions to grow the business together and overcome challenges, capitalize on opportunities and focus on sustainable growth
- > Joint commercial and operating agreements ensure performance accountability, minimizing dwell time and maximizing containers moved per hour

2. Steady and Strategic Investments

- > CN matches infrastructure expansion across its network to that of its partners at the ports so all parties can grow efficiently and proactively reinvest in future growth. CN's capital investment of $1B has been made on increasing Western rail network capacity to support Prince Rupert's growth over the past five years
- > PRPA, DP World, CN, and our other ecosystem supply chain enablers work together to coordinate investments in trade enabling infrastructure in the Port of Prince Rupert and along our network to increase the capacity of the gateway, improve the fluidity of supply chains and diversify our business together. This enables our customers to win in their markets
- > Prince Rupert has been North America's fastest growing intermodal gateway for the past 10 years. Total twenty-foot-equivalent units (TEU), a measure of cargo volume based on the size of a standard twenty-foot intermodal container, grew from 18,279 units in 2007 to 1,141,908 units in 2020 (see graph at right)

3. Joint Marketing and Operating Initiatives Leveraging Our Rich Network

- > PRPA, DP World, and CN have been doing joint marketing and operating initiatives for years in North America, Europe and Asia to promote our services and grow our business together. We will engage with all stakeholders to deliver growth and efficiency at other ports.

We enjoy tremendous continued opportunity: we've only just begun
